For Your Information – June 12, 2014

Lugene Woods' artwork featured at UAMS – If you are on the UAMS Little Rock campus, you really should cross Hooper Street to view fun and thought-provoking artwork by our own Lugene Woods. Lugene is an assistant professor in the Department of Laboratory Sciences – and she's an accomplished artist when she's not teaching medical laboratory sciences students.

Lugene creates unique shadowboxes by combining vintage, found, and recycled objects. Her creations are not only visually intriguing, but some of them make you sit back and think. For example, in A Charmed Life (below), why is the "lady of the house" packing heat at the refrigerator? And the seahorse next to the Coca Cola??

Lugene's show is on exhibit through July on the first floor of the Central Building across from the College of Medicine office. For more information and to preview other shadowboxes, click here.
