Tom Jones elected to national board

– We learned last month that Tom Jones has been elected as a director and member of the Board of Directors for the Coalition for Baccalaureate and Graduate Respiratory Therapy Education (CoBGRTE). His 5-year term on the board begins January 1, 2018. Tom is director of the College of Health Professions' bachelor's degree in respiratory care and associate chair of the Department of Respiratory and Surgical Technologies.

There were 10 nominees for the 3 open board positions. David Shelledy, chair of the election committee, stated that “Your election as a member of the [board] provides an indication of high esteem in which your colleagues hold you.” (By the way, David Shelledy is dean of the School of Health Professions at UT Health San Antonio and former associate dean in the UAMS College of Health Professions.)

CoBGRTE's purpose is to “help students, faculty members, and the general public learn about baccalaureate and graduate respiratory therapy education. . . .” The University of Arkansas for Medical Sciences is an institutional member of the organization. For more information click here.
